About the Seminar:

Maharashtra is among the richest states in India in terms of per capital income, yet incidence of poverty in the state remains close to the national average. The state's economy, grow at a faster rate than the all India average during 1980 -1 to 1992-3, but it slowed down a bit during 1993 - 4 to 2002-3, due to poorer performance of agriculture and industry. Agriculture's contribution to GSDP has come down to 12 per cent in 2002 - 3, but more than 50 percent total workers are still engaged in this. Cropping pattern has been shifting to greater value addition non - cereal crops like fruits, vegetables, oilseeds and sugarcane.

Composition - manufacturing has shifted towards more capital intensive sector. Communication, transport and public administration have accounted for large part of service growth.

Because of Globalization we have made our doors of economic wide open to all the economies of the World. According our college has organized the state level seminar on the subject "Critical Appraisal of Economic Growth of Maharashtra Since 1991"
